

COL. J. R. CHURCH, HERO OF '98, ENDS HIS ARMY CAREER

Former Assistant Surgeon General Relieved Of Active Duty.

Col. James Robb Church, former assistant surgeon general of the army, was relieved from active duty yesterday after a military service marked with distinction which commenced during the Spanish-American war. In that war Col. Church was decorated for "extraordinary heroism under fire, above and beyond the call of duty" and was awarded the Congressional medal of honor.

During the world war, Col. Church came to the fore by the steps he took to insure the reliability of the gas masks that were being shipped to the combat troops. In order to demonstrate the opinion he held that the masks being shipped were unfit for service, Col. Church permitted himself to be gassed while wearing one, with the result that his condition was such that he had to be ordered back on account of his physical condition.

Col. Church resides at 917 Eighteenth street northwest. The War Department lost another of its veterans yesterday by the retirement of William H. Womersley, 4122 Eighth street northwest, a clerk in Coast Guard headquarters.

A large body of Capital newspapermen and their families will leave at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Edgewood, Md., where they will be guests over Labor Day of Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, at an exhibition of the development of the means of chemical warfare.

The use of the new "tear gas" in subduing mobs, airplane bombs, gas shells and other modes of battle in which chemistry figures, will be demonstrated.

An army camp has been set up in a grove on the banks of the Gunpowder River. There will be facilities for boating, swimming, and fishing.

Tonight Dr. Thomas R. Hine will demonstrate the use of illuminating gases in warfare. On Saturday morning the guests will be shown through the arsenal building, the $3,000,000 powder plant and will view a demonstration of artillery firing of gas shells. Harding Gives Out Cabinet Secrets At War College

The Cabinet of the gods—such is President Harding's official family. Disclosing a "Cabinet secret" to an audience at the War College yesterday, the President declared that Secretary Weeks was addressed as "Mars" in these meetings. Later it was learned that Secretary Denby receives friendly introduction as "Neptune," while deliberate thought is being given to the advisability of addressing Postmaster General Will Hays as "Mercury," he being both fleet of foot and the government's leading messenger as director of the mails.

Fall Hats of Black Panne

CONSIDERING the vogue of this class of Millinery, it seems almost incredible that we can offer the most authentic styles at a price out of all consistency with the superiority of the Hats.

Ostrich forms the chief trimming scheme because the demand for that graceful finishing touch is so tremendous. However, there are hosts of other ideas expressed in cre ribbon, embroidery, beads, quills, ornaments, lace veils and flanges, color touches in as many different styles as the most exacting could wish.

Don't fancy that BLACK is all we have, for many women and misses want more showy millinery. Very well, then, here is the new Petunia Purple, Fuchsia, Mephisto Red, Peacock Blue—hosts of colors and just as many trimming effects. The range of styles accommodates matron and maid, flapper and dignified miss—a style for every type and contour of face.
